

Could you be the voice of a generation?

- Does your generation get a fair deal?
- What are you entitled to?
- Who are you responsible for?
- What do you owe future generations?
- What is 'a society for all ages'?

INTERSECTION is a research project about intergenerational justice, consumption and sustainability in three very different countries: China, Uganda and the UK.

As part of this research, we are looking for people from Sheffield to talk about the things you buy and use, your views on the environment and on the differences between generations. We are seeking a range of opinions from people of all ages and backgrounds, not environmental experts! This is your chance to have a voice in a larger conversation.

Please get in touch if you are interested in taking part in:

- An individual interview, or
- A group discussion with people of a similar age, or
- A family interview (young person/parent/grandparent)

Visit our website: www.sheffield.ac.uk/intersection/takepart or contact Dr Kristina Diprose, UK Research Associate e- k.diprose@sheffield.ac.uk t- 07736 480924

The University
Of Sheffield.

Arts & Humanities
Research Council

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS